What Will I Learn?

Embedded strategic HR roles are the key to delivering strategic HR to the business. The ability of strategic business partners to connect organizational strategy with HR strategy creates a powerful engine that aligns talent, leadership and culture to create value for the stakeholders of the business.

Organizations that invest in building strategic partnering skills have more effective business partners that are able to collaborate more effectively with business leaders and have a greater impact on business performance. The key question is what type of skills do Strategic Business Partners need and how can we develop these skills?
